

2009 MUSTANG

Ford Mustang, the country's best-selling sports car for 22 consecutive years and one of the auto industry's most successful nameplates ever, is expanding its view on the world, celebrating its 45th anniversary by offering a new panoramic glass roof option.

But while the Mustang has always been valued for its distinctive appearance, the glass roof option isn't all about looks. The special tinted, reflective glass reduces energy used by the vehicle's air conditioning system by 20 percent and also protects the interior fabric from fading and deteriorating. A manually operated roller blind allows owners to block the light on bright days, while noise, vibration and harshness are reduced in the cabin with a layer of sound absorbent vinyl sandwiched within the special glass.

"Our new panoramic glass roof will allow owners to enjoy the outdoors year-round from the comfort of their Mustang," said Derrick Kuzak, group vice president for Global Product Development. "It's one more feature that sets Mustang apart from the competition."

Also putting the Mustang ahead of the pack are increased customizable options, impressive standard safety features and the return of the "Warriors in Pink" package, which was designed to support the Susan G. Komen for the Cure. Also returning to the stable is the Mustang Bullitt, with an engine and suspension modified with Ford Racing Technology to make it one of the best-sounding, best-handling Mustangs ever.

The 2009 model year also marks the return of the "Warriors in Pink" package, which was designed to support the Susan G. Komen for the Cure. The development of the package took on special meaning for the entire Mustang team as they watched one of their own battle breast cancer and survive. Mustang program manager Jackie Marshall DiMarco was diagnosed with breast cancer while working on that model.

"I was thrilled to be part of the Warriors in Pink," said DiMarco. "The shock of my own diagnosis while working on this project highlighted to me how any of us can be affected when we least expect it and how important it is to work together to heighten awareness, support the courageous women fighting the disease and ultimately find the cure."
